

Great News about the Higher Education Opportunity Act (HEOA) of 2008

You may have been informed of a provision to the federal legislation called the Higher Education Opportunity Act (HEOA) of 2008. This textbook provision, effective July 1, 2010, was designed to decrease the cost of course materials and enhance transparency of the selection and purchase of course materials.

Thankfully, the goals, intent, and language of the provision completely support University Readers' mission and approach to serve you and your students.

3 things you need to know about HEOA:

1. It is not an obstacle to prepare custom course materials that are more relevant and less expensive for your students.
2. The provision states if you are uncertain of your course materials prior to an upcoming term, you are welcome to put "To Be Determined" in your university's online course schedule, or you can simply use our name in the meantime.
3. Since we create order numbers (SKUs) for each project at University Readers, we can reserve a SKU for your university's bookstore use, and produce the materials later.

Here's the actual purpose and intent as stipulated by the provision:

The purpose of this section is to ensure that students have access to affordable course materials by decreasing costs to students and enhancing transparency and disclosure with respect to the selection, purchase, sale, and use of course materials. It is the intent of this section to encourage all of the involved parties, including faculty, students, administrators, institutions of higher education, bookstores, distributors, and publishers, to work together to identify ways to decrease the cost of college textbooks and supplemental materials for students while supporting the academic freedom of faculty members to select high quality course materials for students.
